

Send your class around the world with Global Connections' International Speakers Program

Expand your world

Global Connections' International Speakers Program brings people from other countries into the classroom to share their culture in dynamic and interactive ways. Speakers are community members, Penn State students, faculty and staff trained by Global Connections to provide age-appropriate presentations to students from K-12.

Enhance your curriculum

In addition to social studies units about particular regions of the world, international speakers can also bring life to:

- The study of literature from other countries
- Foreign language classes
- Current events discussions
- Art and music classes
- Diversity awareness and global understanding
- And much more

Explore diversity, practice hospitality

International presenters have much to teach, but the lessons go far beyond curriculum. By engaging with people of other countries, languages cultures, children learn to be better citizens of the world.

Request a speaker

Please contact us at least 3 – 4 weeks before your event. There is no charge to schools and social service organizations. Visit www.gg-cc.org to download a Speaker Request Form.
